

THE VANCOUVER SUN

WESTCOAST HOMES

Works by neighbourhood artists sharpen Jacobsen show-home impact

The work of East Vancouver artists helped create the edgy look of the Jacobsen show home (this page and facing page).

The Jacobsen will rise one block east of Main on Second Avenue, in a neighbourhood that is already a haven for artists.

Among the artists featured are painters Riyadh Hashim, Richard Wlodarczak and Ken West; ceramic artist Lise Kuhr; and photographer June Hunter.

June Hunter

A native of Newcastle upon Tyne in northern England, June Hunter was nine years old when she received her first camera. Recipient of a bachelor's degree in English literature and a diploma in media studies, she took up photography full time only after moving to Vancouver.

Her own garden and Vancouver's alleys are among her regular subjects. Her work is available in a variety of formats, from canvas, photographic prints to archival prints on marble tiles and wooden panels.

Her Granville - rust5 (detail) tops this page.